Moving Toward Wholeness

The purpose of this seminar is to familiarize the participants with the basic concepts of Jungian Psychology. We have discovered that the best way to do this is in terms of a living model of the psyche as it was understood by Jung. The seminar is structured to allow us to do just this. In order to communicate his understanding of the human psyche Jung developed his own vocabulary and an understanding of this vocabulary is important is appropriating Jung's psychology for our personal lives.

John Martin was born in Honolulu, Hawaii and grew up in Gadsden, Alabama. Carolyn Martin also grew up in Gadsden, Alabama and married John, "the boy next door". John received his Doctor of Ministry degree from Louisville Presbyterian Seminary. Carolyn has a B.S. Degree in Elementary Education and a Master's Degree in Religious Education. They retired at the end of June 2003 after thirty-three years at First Presbyterian Church of Elizabethton, Tennessee. John served as minister and during that time at the church, he had an extensive ministry as a pastoral counselor. Carolyn worked there as Director of Christian Education.

John and Carolyn led "Introduction to Jung" weekend seminars for twenty years and from that depth of experience have produced this highly acclaimed Seminar.

John's special skills as a speaker has earned him a much deserved reputation as a popular and substantive presenter at Jungian conferences.

Language of the Soul

Session I - Jung's Model of the Psyche

We will consider how symbols work in terms of Jung's approach. We then turn to Jung's model of the psyche and locate its various aspects: the personal unconscious, the collective unconscious, ego, persona, shadow, anima and animus, complexes and the Self. This material is presented, not as a set of philosophical concepts, but as living realities with which we have to deal each day of our life; the things that make us feel the way we feel and act the way we act.

"I cannot define for you what God is, I can only say that my work has proved empirically that the pattern of God exists in every [hu]man, and that this pattern has at its disposal the greatest of all his energies for transformation and transfiguration of his natural being. Not only the meaning of his life but his renewal and his institutions depend on his conscious relationship with this pattern in his collective unconscious." C. G. Jung

Session II - Projection

Our experience of the realities of the personal unconscious, the collective unconscious, ego, persona, shadow, anima and animus, complexes and the Self involves an elementary psychological reality that is important for us to understand. We will spend a certain amount of time defining and illustrating the basic psychological experience of projection.

Concepts of Anima/Animus - Would it be safe to say that our relationships with the opposite sex can be a little problematic? We think so. In this session we carefully consider Jung's contribution to this area of personal relationships. Using his notions of anima (the woman within the man) and animus (the man within the woman), we attempt to clarify the dynamics of these "invisible partners." Film clips are wonderful tools in this part of our study.

Session III - Jung's Theory of the Complex

Perhaps the most important practical contribution of Jung to modern life is his theory of the complex. To grasp his understanding of complexes can change the way we think about ourselves and can open exciting doors of personal transformation. With this part of our study all that has gone before will come together in a way that we trust will be of genuine benefit to everyone participating.
